

April 2, 1984

your attention a minute, please. If you would return to your desk and pick this up so I could have a word with you so you would know what we are doing because I'll no sooner get through announcing this than you will have questions. So you should have a handout on top of all the stuff on your desk that looks like this. I'm not so concerned that you read the top page but I am concerned that you turn to the second page and have a look at it. The reason for rearranging some of the agenda today, we will attempt to go through it of course, but a few of the things should be done so that we can expedite things between now and the end of the session more expeditiously, whatever that means. You will notice that we are taking a few of the A bills that we should do today so that they can catch up with the bill to which they should be attached, also the state claim bill, #1131. After that we will go to #6 which there may or not be override attempts and there may be an attempt on 880. Then there are four, actually three sunset bills that we should be taking care of. They should not take much time at all and then we will get to our Final Reading and you will notice the rest of the agenda for the day. It is pretty well established on the front page, if you wish to look at it, what we must do and what we should do to come to an orderly conclusion. We have more bills than we are going to get through with which is no surprise to you or me or anyone else, but it is a matter of how long you want to work today and tomorrow as to how many bills you want to cover. I'll stay here as late as you want to do it, however, at some time, and we will get to that later, we will have to go, come back, I believe it is either Tuesday or Thursday night to receive the bills back from the bill drafter so that we can read them on Thursday. So, with that, let's move on to #8 which are the A bills on the back of the first page. Now one bill in that group, #809A, we do not need and I would suggest when we come to it that we have a kill motion on it so we can dispose of it. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Point of personal privilege, Mr. Chairman.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Yes, sir.